THE GUITAR

The first guitar appeared in the 15th century in Spain. It had four strings and a small body. In the 19th century, Antonio de Torres, a guitar maker, increased the size of the guitar's body and he changed its internal structure. He used more flexible and thinner woods. In the 20th century, Andrés Segovia established the guitar as important in classical music. Today, there are a lot of different guitars. Classical guitars have nylon strings. Steel stringed guitars, are heavier and larger than classical guitars. Electrical guitars have a special sound and they are more expensive.
